OCCUPATIONAL LICENSING & DISCIPLINARY GUIDELINES

REVISION 4/2010

OCCUPATIONAL LICENSING AND DISCIPLINARY GUIDELINES

Chapter I GUIDELINES CRITERIA

A. Criteria of Substantial Relationship

- (1) When considering whether a license should be issued with a warning letter, on a restricted (probationary) basis, denied, suspended or revoked, on the basis of a criminal conviction, or on the basis of commission of an act or engagement in any conduct involving moral turpitude, the crime, act or conduct shall be deemed to be substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the licensed activity if it involves:
 - (a) The fraudulent taking, obtaining, appropriating or retaining of funds, property, services or labor belonging to another person.
 - (b) Counterfeiting, forging or altering of money, any instrument, or any receipt, or the uttering of any materially false statement.
 - (c) Willfully attempting to derive a personal financial benefit through the nonpayment or underpayment of any fees, duties, taxes, assessments or levies duly imposed upon the licensee or applicant by federal, state or local government.
 - (d) The use of bribery, fraud, deceit, falsehood, extortion, or misrepresentation to achieve an end.
 - (e) Sexually related conduct causing physical harm or emotional distress to a person who is a witness or non-consenting participant in the conduct or convictions which require registration pursuant to the provisions of Section 290 of the Penal Code.
 - (f) Importation, transportation, or possession for sale or distribution of any controlled substances, illegal weapons, goods for which duties have not been paid, or other contraband in violation of any laws, rules or ordinances imposed upon the licensee or applicant by federal, state or local government.
 - (g) Willfully violating or failing to comply with any licensing, registration, tax, or regulatory provision of Divisions 3, 3.5, 3.6, 4, or 5 of the Vehicle Code, which has resulted in damage, loss, or harm to any individual, the public, or to the State of California.
 - (h) Willfully violating or failing to comply with a statutory requirement that a license, permit or other entitlement be obtained from a duly constituted public authority before engaging in a business or course of conduct.
 - (i) Doing of any unlawful act with the intent of conferring a financial or economic benefit upon the perpetrator or with the intent or threat of doing substantial injury to the person or property of another.

- (j) Doing any unlawful act of physical harm or violence which resulted in substantial loss or injury to the person or property of another.
- (2) The conviction of a crime, act or conduct constituting an attempt, solicitation or conspiracy to commit any of the above enumerated acts or omissions is also deemed to be substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of a licensee of the department.
- (3) If the crime, act or conduct is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of a licensee of the department, the context in which the crime, act or conduct were committed shall go only to the questions of the weight to be accorded to the crime, act or conduct, in considering the action to be taken with respect to the applicant or licensee.

B. Criteria for Rehabilitation (Denial, Suspension, Revocation, Reinstatement or Reduction of Penalty)

- (1) When considering a license denial, suspension, revocation, reinstatement or reduction of penalty, the department will consider the following criteria:
 - (a) Nature and severity of the criminal conviction(s), act(s), or conduct.
 - (b) Any criminal record and evidence of any act(s) or conduct committed subsequent to the criminal conviction(s), act(s) or conduct under consideration which also could be considered as grounds for denial, suspension or revocation.
 - (c) The time that has elapsed since the criminal conviction(s), act(s) or conduct referred to in subdivision (1) or (2), excluding any time spent incarcerated on such conviction(s).
 - (d) The extent to which the applicant or licensee has complied with any terms of parole, probation, restitution or any other sanctions lawfully imposed against the applicant or licensee.
 - (e) If applicable, evidence of expungement proceedings pursuant to Section 1203.4 of the Penal Code.
 - (f) Evidence, if any, of rehabilitation submitted by the applicant or licensee.

C. Use of Occupational Licensing Guidelines

These occupational licensing guidelines are intended for use in determining whether to issue or refuse to issue an occupational license on the basis of criminal convictions and prior department actions.

For purposes of analysis, criminal convictions are divided into three categories, which are identified as Class A crimes, Class B crimes and Class C crimes. Attached as Attachment 1 is a list of the more common Class A, B and C crimes. Based on the classifications set out below in this paragraph, an unlisted crime will require analysis to determine if it fits a particular Class. Class A crimes are serious crimes involving moral turpitude which have a substantial connection or relationship to the duties of an occupational licensee. Instead of attempting a lay definition of the complex legal term “crime involving moral turpitude”, a list of such crimes which are serious and have a substantial connection or relationship to the duties of an occupational licensee are listed in Attachment 1 as Class A Crimes. Less serious crimes involving moral turpitude which have a substantial connection or relationship are listed in Attachment 1 as Class B Crimes. Crimes which have a less substantial connection or relationship to the duties of the licensed activity, or which have a connection only if facts not part of the conviction can be independently proven are listed in Attachment 1 as Class C Crimes.

The use of criminal convictions to deny an occupational license, whether Class A, Class B, or Class C, depends to a large degree on when the convictions occurred in relationship to the date of the license application.

(1) Class A Crimes

Class A crimes, where there is a single conviction within the last five (5) years, should almost always result in the outright denial of an occupational license, even if terms and conditions of parole or probation have been complied with. One of the few exceptions to this rule would be where the applicant has received a Penal Code section 1203.4 dismissal. In those cases, it would be appropriate to treat the conviction to be a Class B crimes for evaluation purposes. If there was a significant period of incarceration, the department should consider the date of release from incarceration as the start of the time to evaluate the conviction and evidence of rehabilitation. Also, if the applicant has failed to disclose the conviction on the application, such failure to disclose is an independent wrongful act which should result in license denial.

A conviction for a single Class A crime which occurred more than five (5) years from the date of the application for occupational license should not be viewed as requiring an automatic denial of a license or the granting of a probationary license. Care should be exercised to attempt to determine whether the applicant, although having committed a serious crime, has attempted and successfully achieved rehabilitation. All the factors set out in the above Criteria for Rehabilitation should be viewed in making such a determination. If the applicant has failed to disclose the conviction or other material fact (for example, use of other names or employment by a dealer previously disciplined) on the application, such failure to disclose is an independent wrongful act and a strong indication that rehabilitation has not been successful.

(2) Class B Crimes

A conviction for a single Class B crime within three (3) years from the date of the application for occupational license requires the exercise of judgment. In considering the above Criteria for Rehabilitation factors, one should particularly consider factors such as the facts and circumstances of the crime, and whether the sentence of the court has been fulfilled in every respect. Again, if the conviction is within three (3) years from the date of the application, a failure to disclose it on the application should result in a license denial.

For a conviction for a single Class B crime which occurred more than three (3) years from the date of the application the focus should be on determining whether the applicant, although having committed a crime, has attempted and successfully achieved rehabilitation. Again, all the factors set out in the above Criteria for Rehabilitation should be viewed in making such a determination. If the applicant has failed to disclose the conviction or other material fact (for example, use of other names or employment by a dealer previously disciplined) on the application, such failure to disclose is an independent wrongful act and a strong indication that rehabilitation has not been successful.

(3) Class C Crimes

Since Class C crimes as stated above have a less substantial connection or relationship to the duties of the licensed activity or have a connection only if facts not part of the conviction can be independently proven, particular care needs to be used in analyzing them after reviewing Attachment 1 as to Class C crimes. A conviction for a single Class C crime within the last three (3) years from the date of the application for occupational license again (like a Class B crime) is an area which requires the exercise of judgment.

Certain Class C crimes that do not involve moral turpitude as a matter of law pose problems with license applications. Examples of these crimes include theft or controlled substances possession for sale or distribution crimes charged against an applicant which as a result of a compromise or plea bargain became lesser criminal convictions such as: (1) Disturbing the Peace; (2) Trespassing; (3) Tampering with a Vehicle; or (4) Possession of Marijuana or Controlled Substances.

These criminal convictions cannot be alleged without determining the true underlying facts and circumstances leading to the actual convictions. For instance, if the department believes that an individual charged with possessing marijuana actually possessed it for sale, it has the responsibility to independently prove the additional facts establishing possession for sale before an administrative law judge. This will usually involve the issuance of a subpoena to a material witness.

Multiple criminal convictions are no different than single criminal convictions, if one of the multiple criminal convictions would ordinarily result in the denial of a license. If, for example, there is one Class A crime that occurred twelve (12) years ago and another Class A crime four (4) years ago, a license should not be issued because the more recent Class A crime should be itself grounds for refusal. Conversely, if there was a Class A crime 12 years ago, and a Class B crime six (6) years ago, the application may need further review as the Class B crime six (6) years ago, by itself, might not cause the department to refuse the license. However, the two offenses may raise an issue as to whether the applicant is suitable to hold an occupational license, in light of an apparent continuing pattern of criminal conduct.

Prior disciplinary actions taken by the department can to some extent be analogized to criminal convictions. A prior actual license revocation of an applicant for an occupational license is similar to a Class A criminal conviction, while other license discipline may be more analogous to a Class B criminal conviction. If license discipline was imposed and the applicant fully complied with the terms and conditions of probation, it may not be appropriate to treat the prior decision as a basis for refusal to issue a license. If there is any question whether to license an applicant who has suffered prior discipline, whether there is also a criminal conviction or whether there are extenuating circumstances, the question should be referred to a manager or supervisor.
